WOVEN & SONGKET

INDONESIA is a country that has ethnic and cultural diversity. Making Indonesia a country with very rich in cultural arts, this includes weaving or songket which is heavily influenced by local customs. Woven and songket craft are one of the traditional textile products that can be found in many regions in Indonesia. Each region has its own characteristics. Both in the manufacturing techniques and the different motifs, as the cultural identity of the area.

PAHIKUNG is a type of cloth made using the tie technique. Pawora is made using a woven technique which is then given a natural dye (wora), while lambaleko is made using a bamboo stick or blade inserted between the threads and then lifted and pressed following certain patterns.

MAUMERE weaving is Indonesian traditional wastra or cloth which is a cultural property that must be preserved. This cloth usually has its own meaning and symbol according to the region of origin. The woven cloth from Maumere, East Nusa Tenggara is no exception.

SIKKA Ikat weaving is a cultural creation that has been passed down from generation to generation by Sikka women, by means of Ikat and weaving using traditional tools.
